

In Regard to Our New Department

More than a year ago the idea of a first-class Women's and Children's Shoe Department was conceived—this in response to frequent calls from our customers. Any such addition to our stock would clearly make an annex a necessity. This we found could easily be accomplished by building in on the lot at the rear of the Miles Millinery Store. Plans were drawn and the workmen will soon turn over to us a department conceded by people who know to be second to none in the state. The room will be 50 feet long by 15 feet wide, lighted by four large prism lights and an entrance from the main store between the wash goods and domestic departments.

Cannot Close Tuesday as Advertised

On account of the lumber not arriving as expected we cannot begin the laying of the floors until later. Notice will be given so that no one may be inconvenienced by finding the store closed.

The Homer Fitts Company

TO-NIGHT

Ends our remarkable Shoe Sale, and if you haven't bought your Shoe needs you will have another opportunity to-night. Our sales Saturday eclipsed any day we have ever had before, which shows that the people know a genuine sale when they see it. To close this sale we will offer 56 pairs of Men's Heavy and Light Arctics at $1.10 a pair, were $1.50, 1st grade only. Buy tonight and you won't make a mistake. We shall have extra clerks to wait on you.

Barre Shoe Company,

HOME OF GOOD SHOES.

BASKET BALL

Two Big Games
Next Week at...

Church Street Gymnasium

Spaulding

vs.

Montpelier High

Tuesday Night, 8 O'clock

Spaulding

vs.

Vermont Academy

Friday Night, 8 O'clock

ADMISSION

GENTS 25c - LADIES 15c.

BASKET BALL

Wednesday Eve, Jan. 27
at Company H Armory, Montpelier, Vt.

Company D of St. Johnsbury

vs.

Lauter A. C. of Jersey City

See the two leading teams of the country line up.

See the game as played by professional teams.

Game Called at 8.15.
Admission, 25c, 35c.

Seats on sale at usual place.

TALK OF THE TOWN

For your public survey, telephone Ewen & Gow, 439-11.

Miss Florence Converse visited relatives in Middlesex over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Batchelder visited relatives in Plainfield over Sunday.

Typewriting, copying, dictation, Mrs. M. G. Nye, rooms 7 and 8, Blanchard block.

John Tinker of St. Johnsbury was a visitor in this city Saturday on business and visiting friends.

The men of the Congregational church will give their annual supper in the vestry, Wednesday evening, Feb. 10. This will be a supper cooked and served entirely by the men, and promises to surpass their previous efforts.

The members of the Burns club are requested to note that the anniversary will be held in Wadsworth's hall this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Exercises will commence promptly at 8 o'clock. The annual dues will be collected in the hall. R. Inglis, secretary.

Miss Gladys N. Gale will receive pupils at any time for instruction in the Child Garden Music Course, harmony and pianoforte work, having studied with Miss J. A. Jones and Mr. Arthur Woods of Boston. Residence, 50 Wellington street, phone 128-11.

By request, the "Modern Sewing Society" will be repeated Monday evening at the Universalist church, as it was inconvenient for many to attend last evening. The program will be equally as good as last evening, with perhaps a change of readers. The mandolin club will assist. Those in charge thank the public for liberal patronage last evening and asks them to come again with their friends. Curtain rises at 7:30, concert at 8. Admission 15c and 20c, at the Universalist church.

At the musical convention to be held at East Montpelier, February 4 and 5, C. F. Dudley is to be the conductor, Mrs. K. L. Cleaves of Montpelier, accompanist; Mrs. A. W. Allen of Barre, soprano; Mrs. Harriet P. Willard of Burlington, contralto; L. G. Griffiths of Barre, tenor; Walter Goss of Montpelier, tenor; H. H. Mayo of Concord, baritone; and H. D. Hopkins of Montpelier, entertainer. The Plainfield male quartet are expected, chorus of 75 voices for convention, and Gilbertson's orchestra for the dance on Friday evening after the concert, will make a combination that everyone ought to hear. Don't miss it, as it will be the musical event of the season.

DR. Z. ARCHAMBAULT.

General diseases treated, but special attention given to the treatment of tuberculosis or consumption by means of the new serum. Barre—Office 55 Summer St., corner West. Hours: 10 to 5 a. m., 7 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m. Westerville—Residence Henry O'Grady, for consultation, Tuesdays 9 to 12 a. m. Grantville—Residence Orlan Gilbert, for consultation, Fridays 9 to 12 a. m. Tel. 407-25.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Roller skating at the pavilion tonight.

Hospital Benefit Supper.—Chicken pie supper, under direction Mrs. Benedict, Thursday evening, January 28, from 5:30 to 7:30, Universalist church vestry.

Regular meeting of Green Mountain lodge, I. O. O. F., M. U., this evening at 7 o'clock, in K. of C. hall. Something of interest to all members, so please be present.

There will be a meeting of Victoria lodge, No. 10, K. of P., Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Work, rank of esquire.

There will be a regular meeting of Barre aerie, No. 1573, Monday evening at 7:30. Initiation.

There will be no lack of variety in the offering of the Harcourt Comedy company this week at the opera house, for the reason Mr. Harris has secured a list of plays, every one of which is of the highest order, and has surrounded the leaders with a company of intelligence and ability. This season the Harcourt Comedy Co. is said to be without a doubt the best equipped week stand in route, and pride themselves with presenting a series of productions beyond the search of the average repertoire organization. The opening play, the specialties, fine costumes and elaborate scenery, have pleased in all cities visited this season. "To-night will be ladies' night."

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

There will be no lack of variety in the offering of the Harcourt Comedy company this week at the opera house, for the reason Mr. Harris has secured a list of plays, every one of which is of the highest order, and has surrounded the leaders with a company of intelligence and ability. This season the Harcourt Comedy Co. is said to be without a doubt the best equipped week stand in route, and pride themselves with presenting a series of productions beyond the search of the average repertoire organization. The opening play, the specialties, fine costumes and elaborate scenery, have pleased in all cities visited this season. "To-night will be ladies' night."

SECOND-HAND FURNITURE SALE

It began Saturday, the 23d, and will continue ten days only.

Cook stoves, parlor stoves, iron bedsteads, chairs, tables, springs, pictures—all marked down to special bargain prices.

Come in early in sale—to-day—for best trades. Goods delivered free. Tel. 111-21.

Union Furniture Exchange,
349 N. Main St., G. Tomasi Block

THE BARRE DAILY TIMES

MONDAY, JANUARY 25, 1909.

Weather Prediction.

Rain or snow in north portion and warmer in Maine and New Hampshire; fair in south portion to-night. Tuesday, fair and light variable winds, becoming southerly and westerly.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Local Happenings Tensely Told for Busy Readers.

Remnant sale at Abbott's.

This week at Perry's we shall have our remnants on sale.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Owens visited relatives in Northfield yesterday.

Men's and boys' underwear marked down to half price at Perry's.

The Philomathians will meet with Mrs. Laseell Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Curtis left Saturday for a visit with relatives in Underhill.

Homer Fitts Co.'s store will not be closed Tuesday, as stated in a local in Saturday's Times.

Mrs. Joseph Denny of Northfield is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. James F. Higgins.

Gordon Riddell, 24 Elm street, guarantees satisfaction in watch and clock repairs. Over 20 years experience.

Tickets for the Hospital Benefit ball are on sale at Tilden's shoe store, Moore & Owens', and D. Merlo's, 311 North Main street.

Hospital Benefit Supper.—Chicken pie supper, under direction Mrs. Benedict, Thursday evening, January 28, from 5:30 to 7:30, Universalist church vestry.

Mrs. C. P. Davis, who is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Corrie, has gone to St. Johnsbury to attend the Scotia club banquet this evening and will visit relatives a few days.

The St. Albans Messenger has the following: "The display of White Plymouth Rocks made by A. P. Abbott & Son of Barre is pronounced by the judges to be wonderful, equal to any ever seen in Boston."

Many changes were rung in the weather yesterday, varying from a rain-storm to a snow-storm, with thunder and lightning in between. This for the 24th day of January was something out of the usual order dished up to us.

Members of the Burns club, attention! The 150th anniversary of the birth of Robert Burns will be celebrated in Woodmen's hall, Bolster block, Monday evening, Jan. 25. The annual dues will be collected at the hall. Members please wear badges.

Hospital benefit Thursday evening, January 28. Remember, this is not for someone else, but for you. You are one of the members and a committee of one, and the least you can do is to buy a ticket for the concert and ball, for $1.50 per couple. Turkey supper extra in the I. O. O. F. hall at 11 o'clock for 50c a plate. Watch for the menu.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church will have a "Domestic Science" afternoon at the vestry, Wednesday, Jan. 27. Each member is requested to bring a written question pertaining to this science. There will be a short program, followed by chaffing dish demonstrations. All ladies of the congregation are cordially invited.

A letter from N. H. Boodry at Farmington, N. H., states that his health is not much improved since he left Barre last November, and that he expects to go to a hospital soon to have a second operation for tubercular peritonitis. Mr. Boodry has sold the parlor Dixie L., which he bought of John Trow, to E. H. Rollins of Alton, N. H., for $200. Dixie L. was the king of the snowpath in Farmington this winter.

Mme. Carrino and her performing team, one of the attractions at the opera house last week, went to South Framingham, Mass., yesterday, where they will exhibit this week. The "Polly of the Circus" company, which plays here to-morrow night, stopped over Sunday at Miller's Inn in Montpelier and went to-day to St. Johnsbury, where it appears to-night, returning for the Barre date Tuesday and one in Montpelier for Wednesday.

On Saturday evening fourteen young girl friends of Velma Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Coffin, met at her home on Washington street to celebrate with her her tenth birthday anniversary. At seven o'clock a collation was served, consisting of sandwiches, cake, ice cream, cocoa, fruit, etc., after which games were indulged in and much enjoyed by all until about ten o'clock, when the guests dispersed to their homes, leaving tokens of remembrance to Mrs. Velma and wishing her many returns of the day.

There will be no lack of variety in the offering of the Harcourt Comedy company this week at the opera house, for the reason Mr. Harris has secured a list of plays, every one of which is of the highest order, and has surrounded the leaders with a company of intelligence and ability. This season the Harcourt Comedy Co. is said to be without a doubt the best equipped week stand in route, and pride themselves with presenting a series of productions beyond the search of the average repertoire organization. The opening play, the specialties, fine costumes and elaborate scenery, have pleased in all cities visited this season. "To-night will be ladies' night."

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury, in a fall from her horse, is carried to the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and of the young parson who whose heart she is carried as well. It is told in three acts and six scenes, and the production and supporting company is up to what money and brains can do.

"Polly of the Circus," that play by Margaret Mayo that made money and fame for Frederic Thompson, will be given for the first time in this city at the opera house Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The story is unique, because it deals with circus life and the scene is laid in a small town in the middle West, where nothing but small wagon shows can visit. The story is of the love of Polly, the pet of the circus, who